

ISBNPA Post-Conference Satellite Meeting

Cambridge, Sunday 26th – Tuesday 28th May 2013

More than the sum of the parts?

Integration of individual and environmental approaches to changing population-level physical activity behaviour

Environmental change may be necessary but not sufficient to increase population levels of physical activity. This meeting is for those interested in designing and evaluating interventions that combine environmental and individual perspectives on behaviour change.

Your active participation in plenaries, case studies and discussions will help develop our understanding of the evidence, methodological challenges and how intervention research can be advanced.

Speakers will include:

- Susan Michie, University College London
- Billie Giles-Corti, University of Melbourne
- Susi Kriemler, University of Basel
- Nanette Mutrie, University of Edinburgh
- David Ogilvie, MRC Epidemiology Unit, Cambridge
- Shannon Sahlqvist, Deakin University, Australia

Places are limited to ensure active participation.

Early bird discounts available for PhD students.
